

Gardening Group: Regents Park

Our July visit was to the beautiful Broadwalk and Queen's Rose Gardens in Regents Park. We wandered along admiring the long borders of the Broadwalk planted with a range of beautiful bedding and perennial flowers. There were signs here and there of gardeners at work.

We found a shady place to rest and admire the flowers before moving on to the Queen's Rose Garden. En route, we found another site for Capel Manor College and admired the scarecrow on their allotment.

The Queen's Rose Gardens are situated beyond some very ornate gates which we admired.

Following our walk around the roses we had a light lunch in the café before we carried on exploring the Gardens further.

The Triton Fountain glistened in the afternoon sun. We saw people enjoying sitting or sunbathing close to it with the sound of the fountain softly murmuring.

We headed back to the Broadwalk for a last look at their beds before going home.
